

Give Me Some Extra Days!

Written by Jeffrey L. Boney
Friday, 03 February 2012 00:00

Black History Month is acknowledged by some, celebrated by some and ignored by some in the United States every February.

Yeah...yeah, I know that it is the shortest month of the year and “they” could have given us a month that had more days in it. I am not a conspiracy theorist or anything, but I can see how someone could look at that and make that argument.

The question I have though is, who is “THEY” and why do “THEY” get to dictate when, how and how often the contributions of blacks in this country are acknowledged and celebrated.

