

Jay-Z, Pharrell, & More Talk Race & Culture Relations In Business With Steve Stoute

On the heels of his latest book which hit shelves yesterday, Tanning Of America, businessman Steve Stoute (who is the branding and marketing genius behind some of the biggest celebs you love) has created a web series for AOL HuffPost where he talks with some of Hip Hop & Pop's leading tastemakers (like Jay-Z, Pharrell, Lady Gaga) about the interactions of race and business and how both are impacted by pop culture.

Steve Stoute, author of The Tanning Of America: How the Culture of Hip-Hop Rewrote the Rules of the New Economy, has made a name for himself in both the music industry and through linking some of music's biggest stars with high profile endorsement deals and business ventures (e.g Justin Timberlake/McDonald's, LeBron James/State Farm Insurance) through his Translation Consultation & Brand Imaging company.

Now he is hosting a video series called "The Tanning Effect" with AOL HuffPost where he talks to superstars like Jay-Z, Pharrell Williams and Lady Gaga about race, business and pop culture. Interesting food for thought..especially for our fab business savvy readers.

Written by Forward Times Staff Writer
Friday, 16 September 2011 00:00

---

Mr. Kinler Williams Has Died "Kin" Williams has died. Kin Williams, 67, died of a heart attack on Thursday, Sept. 15, 2011, in his home in Los Angeles. Kin was a former professional football player and a member of the Pro Football Hall of Fame. He played for the Los Angeles Rams and the New York Jets. Kin was a member of the Los Angeles Rams' "The Greatest Show on Turf" team that won the Super Bowl in 1980. Kin was a member of the Los Angeles Rams' "The Greatest Show on Turf" team that won the Super Bowl in 1980. Kin was a member of the Los Angeles Rams' "The Greatest Show on Turf" team that won the Super Bowl in 1980.