Not only did Kevin Hart celebrate his 33rd birthday over the Fourth of July weekend, he also made history with his film 'Let me Explain' taking in over `id="mce_marker"7` million at the box office and making it the biggest opening weekend for a comedy concert ever.

All of the hard work, commitment to social media and staying connected to fans has truly paid off for the comedian. "Let me Explain" serves as follow up to his previous comedy concert film 'Laugh at my Pain.' 'Let me Explain' attempts to disprove the notion that funnyman Kevin has truly gone "Hollywood." They say the best way to deal with pain is through laughter and it is evident he has been dealing with some very real issues outside of the limelight including divorce, fatherhood, and being fulfilled.
